

Nation Balloting for President; Estimate Vote to Top 60 Million

Congress Control Also At Stake With Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans in record-breaking early turnouts voted today on whether Dwight D. Eisenhower or Adlai E. Stevenson should lead them during the next four years.

Apparently spurred by the bloody events in Hungary and the Middle East they poured to the polls in numbers suggesting that the total vote might equal or surpass the record 61,551,919 cast in 1952.

In many areas East, West, North, South—the report by midday was “bigger than 1952.”

In most parts of the United States the weather was ideal for voting.

But the world climate was marred by war and the threat of spreading strife.

President Eisenhower snatched 3 hours and 9 minutes from his executive duties to go to Gettysburg Pa., with Mrs. Eisenhower and vote.

He made the trip to Gettysburg by automobile. But, in a sudden change of plan, he flew back.

On his return he went immediately into conference with his top military and diplomatic aides on the Middle Eastern conflict.

Stevenson voted at Half Day, a village near his Libertyville, Ill., country home.

Former President Harry S. Truman voted at 7 a. m. in Independence, Mo.

Heavy Voting Reported

Typical of the voting reports was that from Texas. Indications after the first few hours of balloting there were that the state would set a new general election record. In San Francisco a spot check showed voting in the first two hours up 20 per cent from 1952.

In Missouri's St. Louis County 27 per cent of the registered voters had cast their ballots 3½ hours after poll opening. At the South Main and Robinson Paving Is Under Way

Other Blacktopping Will Be Done Under Present Program

It is blacktopping time in the city of Harrisburg.

Paving of South Main and Robinson from Main to Granger started yesterday morning and before the day was over workmen had placed one layer of the bituminous course on the 24-foot street and were starting on the second.

Sneed Jordan, commissioner of streets and alleys, said that barring bad weather motorists will be driving on this street Friday.

The work is being done by the Mitchell Construction Co. of Herrin and the blacktop material is being furnished by the MacLair Asphalt Co. of East St. Louis which set up a batch plant on Barnett street this spring for the Route 13 blacktopping job from Shawneetown into Williamson county.

There will be three layers of bituminous surfacing placed on the Main-Robinson project the third a fine-grained seal. The blacktopping will be seven inches thick.

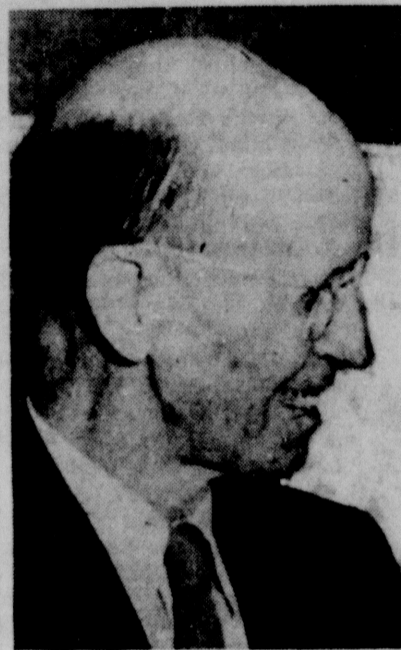

Other blacktopping work will be done in Harrisburg while the plant is in operation again. Mr. Jordan stated. The block on Mill street between Gaskins and Lincoln, which recently was widened and curbed, will be blacktopped by the city.

The city yesterday prepared a six-foot area between the curb and the sidewalk in front of the McKinley Avenue Baptist church and this will be filled with bituminous material to be paid for by the church to aid parking at the church.

Also, the city will prepare about 200 feet of alley from Main street west between the Colonial hotel and the Capel building for property owners, who will pay to have the area blacktopped.

D. B. McGehee Dies; Prominent In Local Affairs

Was Active in Harrisburg Civic, Educational Life

Dennis B. McGehee

Dennis Burdette McGehee, Harrisburg automobile dealer who for years was prominent in civic and educational affairs of the community, died at 11:30 last night at his home, 103 North Granger street.

Mr. McGehee, who had been bedfast since January 1, died of a heart condition.

At the time of his death he was in partnership with his son, Gordon, in the ownership and operation of the Saline Motor Co. in Harrisburg. Mr. McGehee had been connected with this firm for the past 28 years.

Before his health began to fail, Mr. McGehee was active in Harrisburg's civic and educational life. An insatiable reader, he kept informed on current events as well as history, and was called on often for historical and contemporary talks.

He was a Rotarian, and was president of the Mitchell-Carnegie library board at the time of his death, having been a member of the board for more than 25 years.

But his principal interest for more than 20 years was the Harrisburg Public Schools. He was elected a member of the board of education of District 43 in 1931, was named secretary in 1933 and continued that office until 1949 when he was elected president. He retired from the presidency and the board in April of 1952.

He was a 32nd Degree Mason and held a 50-year service pin as a member of Harrisburg Lodge. He was a charter member of Harrisburg Lodge 1058, B. P. O. Elks. Mr. McGehee was born Sept. 26, 1879, at Omaha, Ill., and on October 7, 1908, was married to Miss Clyde Thompson, who died March 22, 1953.

Egypt Appeals to U. S. for Help Against Invasion

Ambassador Delivers Note to Acting Sec'y Of State Hoover

WASHINGTON (UP)—Egypt appealed to the United States today for help—“by volunteers, arms or otherwise”—in resisting what it described as dishonorable and brutal aggression.

The formal appeal was contained in a note delivered by Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed Hussein to Acting Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

The note said the Egyptian people “are fighting a battle of survival and of honor.”

“They are fighting it not only for themselves and their country but equally for the civilized world,” the note said.

Reports Heavy Casualties

Hussein said he did not know whether a similar appeal had been made to Russia or elsewhere.

He also declined to give reports of Hoover's reaction to his appeal.

Hussein delivered two communications to Hoover—the formal appeal for help and a communication from Egypt to the effect that British and French bombardments of Egyptian cities is continuing and “casualties are very heavy.”

He said he presented the Egyptian appeal to the State Department in an effort to get United States help in any way to “stop this savage, brutal, dishonorable war.”

Confer at White House

Earlier today, Hoover and CIA Director Allen W. Dulles went to the White House to discuss the international situation with President Eisenhower.

Meanwhile, the White House branded Russia's call for joint U. S.-Soviet action to stop aggression in the Middle East as “an obvious attempt to divert world attention from the Hungarian tragedy.”

Mock Elections at High Schools Favor GOP In All But One Race

All four high schools of Saline county have held mock elections and a tabulation of seven key races showed the Republicans were ahead in all but one.

Reason only seven of the races were tabulated was because Harrisburg high school held its election too late yesterday to count the votes for all candidates. Counted were the votes for President, U. S. Senator, governor, secretary of state, congressman, circuit clerk and coroner, probably of most interest to most of the people of the county.

Although the other three high schools reported on all the candidates, only the seven races can be compiled. However, all the figures from Carrier Mills, Galatia and Eldorado except for representative where there was no race, will be shown.

The seven totals give a good enough indication of the sentiment among the students at the four schools. Only Democrat to come out ahead was Kenneth Gray for congress and his margin was 18 votes out of a total of 1,454 ballots cast for the office.

With Harrisburg high school students casting around 775 ballots with a definite showing of Republicanism, the totals for the seven races in the four schools were:

President: Eisenhower R 857, Stevenson D 632.

U. S. Senator: Dirksen R 809, Stengel D 645.

Governor: Stratton R 782, Austin D 674.

Secretary of State: Carpenter R 839, Mallett D 610.

Congress: Gray D 735, Scott R 719.

Circuit Clerk: Bowers R 798, Burroughs D 650.

Coroner: Gibbons R 792, Thornton D 668.

The school principals emphasized that the elections were held as studies in government and were not meant to try to influence the voting. Thus the reason for holding up the results until today, Harrisburg and Galatia voted yesterday, Eldorado last Friday and Carrier Mills about a week ago.

The results by schools:

HARRISBURG HIGH

President: Stevenson D 288, Eisenhower R 485.

U. S. Senator: Stengel D 306, Dirksen R 447.

Governor: Austin D 319, Stratton R 434.

Secretary of State: Mallett D 285, Carpenter R 465.

Congressman: Gray D 359, Scott R 398.

Circuit Clerk: Burroughs D 307, Bowers R 445.

Coroner: Thornton D 288, Gibbons R 476.

CARRIER MILLS HIGH

President: Stevenson D 88, Eisenhower R 102.

U. S. Senator: Stengel D 86, Dirksen R 99.

Governor: Austin D 89, Stratton R 99.

Lt. Governor: Bonjean D 91, Chapman R 87.

Secretary of State: Mallett D 81.

Hammar-skjold Announces Joint Action

Forces Ordered To Cease Fire Unless Attacked

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Britain informed the United Nations officially today that British and French troops will end hostilities in the Middle East at 6 p. m. CST.

Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold made the announcement at a news conference here shortly after 1 p. m. British Prime Minister Anthony Eden at the same time announced it in Parliament.

A letter to Hammarskjold, speaking jointly for Britain and France, said the two governments would agree to a cease-fire if the secretary-general “can confirm that Egypt and Israel have accepted a cease-fire and that an international force will be completed to secure the truce.”

“Her majesty's government,” the British letter said, “is ordering its forces to cease fire at midnight, GMT, (6 p. m. CST) unless they are attacked.”

Will Clear Canal
The Anglo-French notification said that clearing of obstructions from the blocked Suez Canal was not a military operation and that their forces had technical personnel with them to do the job.

“We propose to begin work on that at once,” the letter said. Hammarskjold already had received unconditional acceptance from both Egypt and Israel to the cease-fire appeal issued by the U. N. General Assembly last week.

The assembly has approved a Canadian proposal for a U. N. police force to go into Egypt to separate the combatants and take over the Suez Canal Zone until a settlement is agreed upon. Assembly Meets Tonight
The General Assembly was scheduled to meet tonight to vote final approval of the police force plan.

Hammarskjold said he would wait until the assembly acted before replying to the Anglo-French note.

The weary secretary-general announced the imminent end of the Middle East fighting in a five minute news conference.

U. S., Britain, France In Urgent Consultations On Russian Moves

LONDON (AP)—Britain and France launched an amphibious invasion of the Suez Canal Zone today.

The United States, Britain and France were in urgent consultation to work out a common policy to cope with Russia's moves, a French Foreign Ministry spokesman said. They are giving “serious”

"The Winner Is . . .!"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
British-American Alliance Is Just About Dead; Dulles
White-Faced And Furious
Over British-French Operations In Suez; He Didn't Realize How Deeply He Had Aroused Them.

WASHINGTON. — Sessions between John Foster Dulles, the French ambassador and the British charge d'affaires were charged with sulphuric tension last week. They have been polite, but the man in the street would describe Dulles as white-faced and furious.

Whatever the correct description, here are the events which led to the virtual ending of the British-French-American alliance, an alliance which began when the embattled British were fighting off Hitler in 1940 and extended through such unpopular British policies as support for the U. S. A. in Korea and Formosa. Despite its ups and downs, despite trans-Atlantic criticism, the alliance developed a system of mutual advice on every major move for 15 years.

For approximately 10 days prior to the Israeli invasion of Egypt, American diplomats could make no appointments with French and British diplomats abroad. Usually convivial, usually frank about what they were doing, the British and French were aloof.

Even in Jerusalem, French and British military attaches would not sit down for a highball with their American counterparts.

ISRAEL'S ARMS BUILD-UP
For three months, London and Paris had seen John Foster Dulles block every move they proposed regarding the Suez Canal, and they had decided in the future they would not telegraph their punches. As reported in this column October 10 Prime Minister Eden and French Foreign Minister Mollet decided, for the first time in years, they would deliberately keep Dulles uninformed.

Meanwhile, American observers in Israel knew a military build-up was taking place, they so informed Washington. They had no idea, however, that the French and British were in on Israel's plans.

Shortly before the Israeli arms build-up developed into an attack, John Foster Dulles called in the French and British envoys and blandly, rather piously informed them the President had instructed him to inform them he would not be swayed by the forthcoming elections. Despite the elections, he would stake a strong stand against aggression.

The British and French envoys listened, but said nothing. Maybe they did not know what their home governments planned with Israel. If they did, they kept poker faces.

After the Israeli attack, Dulles moved again. Blithely he figured he could turn a crisis in the Near East into a big plus politically at home. By rushing before the United Nations he could demonstrate once again that Ike was the man of peace. So he took a risk, made the move before the UN fast. He had no idea what had been brewing in the chanceries of Europe, no idea how deeply he had offended the French and British by his various moves blocking them in Suez.

He did not know this until British Charge D'Affaires J. E. Coulson flatly informed him early this week that the joint British-American-Franco declaration against Near East aggression was dead — dead as a dodo, as far as Britain was concerned. This was the declaration that President Eisenhower had publicly depended on.
Coulson's statement cut the ground right out from under him.

TOUGH AMBASSADOR
It also set the stage for the history-making French-British veto of the American peace move in the United Nations.

Coulson's visit followed right after a cold and chilling Dulles session with new French Ambassador Herve Alphond. Ambassador Alphond is one of the smartest diplomats recently graduated from the sometimes stuffy Quai D'Orsay. Uninhibited by the red tape and coldness of that sanctum of French foreign affairs, he calls a spade a spade, both with the press and diplomats. He called a spade a spade with John Foster
Dulles.

France, he told Dulles, was not going to stand for Egypt's high-handed methods. Having got away with seizure of the canal, he said, Nasser was sure to jump on Israel next. France he said, would go ahead with its own steps to safeguard the canal whether the U. S. A. liked it or not.

In the words of Broadway, he thumbed his nose at John Foster
Dulles.

After that, Foster got on the long-distance telephone. I have not been able to find out how long he spent on the phone talking to Sir Anthony Eden, who incidentally dislikes him, but I would hate to pay the phone bill.

Dulles dropped veiled threats that Britain and France would face an economic crisis if they went ahead in the Suez Canal. He indicated that they might not be able to get oil from the U. S. A.
if the canal was closed and oil had to be shipped around Africa.
He decried British and French failure to consult.

He got nowhere.

Gradually it began to dawn on John Foster that the French and British were fed up with him and had worked out their own deal with Israel. Gradually it began to dawn on him that the Anglo-French-American alliance which had weathered a good many storms in the past was pretty much a thing of the past.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D.
(Written for NEA Service)

The blotter in the post office contains a peculiar scramble of odd bits of handwriting. Of course it is all reversed so that we cannot easily read the words imprinted on the soft surface. Even if we hold the blotter in front of the mirror we cannot make out any sequence of thought.

Too many words, too many scripts, too many personalities have been superimposed, one on the other, to distinguish a single picture of an idea. Yet there is a feature of congruity. There is a singleness of purpose and a story of objective.

Every blotter word has been used to create a word picture—a picture which will identify a person or an idea. Each symbol has been drawn to tell a story to another person. Every line could be unscrambled and assigned to an individual person.

We live in a civilization where the personalities of millions of individuals are superimposed on each other. There are certain characteristics of you and me which can scarcely be separated from those of other people. Yet no two of us are alike. No two express themselves alike.

Somehow God separates our multiple desires and ideas and sees us as individuals. He does not look upon us as a scramble of lives on a blotter. We are His children and He treats us as we are.

Tony Perkins: May Be New Jimmy Dean

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Motorists stopping for a tall, skinny teen-ager with an impish smile and a lively thumb who was hitch-hiking from Florida to California in the spring of 1951 may have laughed to themselves when he sat down beside them and said:

"I'm going to Hollywood to crash the movies."

They didn't know, of course, that 6-foot, 2½-inch Tony Perkins was thumbing his way to stardom because Tony didn't know it either.

But today 24-year-old Tony Perkins is Hollywood's most exciting new star, variously described as "another Jimmy Dean," "a young Jimmy Stewart" and "a young Gary Cooper."

Like Dean, he has been labeled as moody, offbeat and vaguely rebellious. And also like Dean he has that "teen-age identification" which rolls up big boxoffice receipts these days.

Hollywood is betting $16,000,000 worth of new celluloid that Tony is the heir to Dean's mantle of fame and fan worship. Name a movie in Hollywood right now and Tony's in it.

He's Gary Cooper's son in the just released "Friendly Persuasion." He just completed two Paramount films — a western, "The Lonely Man," and "Fear Strikes Out," the Jim Piersall story of mental breakdown.

He's in front of the cameras right now in another western, "The Tin Star."

Coming up for Tony are four more starring films—"Desire Under the Elms" with Sophia Loren; "The Sea Wall," opposite Silvana Mangano; "The Matchmaker" with Shirley Booth and Shirley MacLaine, and the film version of "Joey," a television drama in which he starred.

"I fell into all this like a big hole," says always-stingy-with-words Tony. "I feel inadequate but I'll try to live up to it." Tony is just being modest because he has an acting heritage. He's the son of the late Broadway star, Osgood Perkins, and he's been acting ever since he played an Easter Egg in a Sunday school play when he was five.

At 14 and for the five summers that followed, Tony followed the summer stock trail eating and sleeping acting. He swept out, built scenery, took tickets and played everything from old men to "anyone for tennis" romantics. In private school during the winter, Tony "flunked almost everything," finished 24th in a class of 25 at Browne Nichols and was refused the entrance examination at Harvard because of his poor prep school grades.

As a younger lad he wasn't much of a student, either. "I went," he grins, "to a New York progressive school for unmanageable kids like me."

Harvard didn't want Tony but Rollins College in Florida didn't mind his poor grades. But it was Tony who decided he didn't want Rollins. In his freshman year he gathered up $100 and hitch-hiked to Hollywood to crash the movies. A movietown friend arranged a screen test at MGM.

"Don't call us," the studio said, "We'll call you."

Tony waited in Hollywood for a few weeks but no one called. So he went home to New York, where he lives with his mother, enrolled at Columbia U. — and Hollywood finally called. The studio wanted Tony for a role opposite Jean Simmons in "The Actress." His college pals thought it was a gag but Tony spent his Christmas vacation in 1951 working in the movie.

TONY PERKINS: "I feel inadequate but I'll try . . ."

The film was a flop, but not for Tony. Scouts for a big Hollywood talent agency saw the film and decided he had star dust in his hair. The agency got him roles on such TV shows as Studio One, Goodyear, Steel Hour, Kraft and The Big Story. One day he was sent to the New York office of Director Elia Kazan, who was about to make a movie titled "East of Eden."

There was another young lad in Kazan's reception room when Tony arrived. He introduced himself to Tony with, "I'm James Dean." Kazan hired Dean for the film role but he was mighty impressed with Tony. Would he be interested in replacing John Kerr in "Tea and Sympathy" on Broadway? "I guess so," said Tony, disappointed because he wasn't picked for the movie "East of Eden."

But "Tea and Sympathy," opposite Deborah Kerr, put Tony's name in lights on Broadway for thirteen months. Once again Hollywood was calling and now movie stardom is his cup of tea.

Non-conforming movie stardom, that is.

Tony dresses like a day laborer, lives on malted milks, hates night clubs and parties, drives a rented Ford, occasionally goes barefooted.

"You're so worried about stepping on something you forget your other problems" — and convulses friends with rare comments.

Invited to gambling happy Las Vegas, he grunted: "I wouldn't go there on a bet." Asked what kind of roles he likes, he muttered: "Long ones." And when someone wondered if he'd like to travel some day, Tony replied: "I'm too tall to travel."

But young Tony Perkins sure is traveling in Hollywood these days.

Major Prizes Awarded At Open House of Baker Furniture Store

Baker Furniture store's open house at Eldorado last night attracted a very large attendance, several hundred people visiting the store and browsing through its aisles of furniture and household appliances, upstairs and downstairs.

Major prizes were awarded as follows: First prize, $59.95 inner-spring mattress went to Mrs. James White, 620 West Poplar street, Harrisburg; second, $39.50 Axminster rug, to Elvis Ramsey, Eldorado; third prize, $19.95 floor lamp, to Roy Donelson, 1121 Hobson street, Harrisburg.

Three children and four of six crew members were killed. Five passengers were unaccounted for several hours after the crash. Only twenty persons were sent to hospitals.

The four-engine Hermes airliner bringing 74 dependents of servicemen home from the battle-torn Middle East crashed in flames near Blackbushe Airport, 30 miles southwest of London.

It plunged into a pine wood, plowed a path through the trees for nearly 100 yards and then burst into flames. But airport officials said the lives of most of the passengers were saved because the rearward-facing seats absorbed much of the shock of the crash.

Work began today toward the improvement of the Cottage Grove cemetery. The main project was the leveling of the grounds to make it easier for mowing.

The families of those not having markers on their graves are asked to take action immediately so that these places of burial may be identified.

Persons who could not work today at the cemetery are invited to work at their convenience. A meeting was held recently and the following elected to the cemetery committee: secretary, Mrs. Mabel Alvey; treasurer, Mrs. Raymond Alvey; Mrs. Vernon Seten and Herman Berry. The following will assist on Memorial day: Mrs. Oscar Hurley, Miss Flo Bourland, Clint Baker, Herman Smith and Nell Bourland.

pany when that company entered this area.

About 1920, while acting as office manager, compensation officer and land agent, he was promoted to a vice-presidency with O'Garra and moved to Chicago. He resigned that situation in the late 20's to return to Harrisburg and enter business.

His funeral will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Gaskins funeral home. The service will be conducted by the Rev. William Burroughs, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of which he was a member. Burial will be in Sunset Hill cemetery. The family requests that flowers be omitted.

Besides the son, Gordon, he is survived by two grandchildren, Sally and Bob, and two sisters, Mrs. J. R. (Mary) Anderson of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Mabel Chamness of Carrier Mills. A brother, Robert McGehee, preceded him in death.

He was the son of the late Robert S. and Sarah McGehee and his grandfather, Moses P. McGehee, donated the ground upon which the Saline County court house was built.

Nation Balloting For President

Eisenhower has suffered two serious illnesses in the past 14 months. It also was part of the Democratic strategy of hitting hard at the controversial Nixon.

Stevenson said that "as a citizen, more than a candidate, I recoil at the prospect of Nixon as custodian of this nation's future."

Gets Angry Reply

The Democratic candidate's statement brought an angry reply from White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty. Hagerty said he had never expected to hear any American "give as a reason for his own election a forecast that the president of the United States would die in office."

Fifteen minutes after Stevenson's image faded from TV screens, the GOP came on with its election eve program. It concluded with talks by the President and Nixon from the White House.

Mr. Eisenhower spoke of his current worries over the Middle East crisis but made no attempt to give a partisan defense of his administration's policy. He said peace and freedom are indivisible and urged everyone to exercise their right to vote — a right for which, he said, people are dying abroad.

He made no comment on Stevenson's indirect reference to his health.

Polls Favor Ike

Virtually all polls have indicated that Mr. Eisenhower was a safe bet for reelection. Democrats could console themselves with the hope that the polls were wrong as they were in 1948, when President Truman was counted out before the voters elected him.

Next to the presidency, the biggest prize is control of Congress. Although the oddsmakers were giving the nod to the Democrats, in this battle, a landslide defeat in the presidential race could upset any such calculations.

In 1952, Mr. Eisenhower ran far ahead of most Republican candidates for the House and Senate. The GOP won control of Congress by slim margins, then lost their majorities in both Houses in the mid-term elections of 1954.

Eighteen senate seats now held by Democrats and 17 held by Republicans are at stake. Of the 18 Democratic seats, 11 are in Southern or other states where the Democrats are relatively safe.

House: 432 of 435 seats. Two Republicans and one Democrat elected in Maine Sept. 10. Necessary for control: 218 seats. Present lineup: 230 Democrats, 201 Republicans, 4 vacancies.

Governors: in 29 of 48 states. Democrats now hold 13 of these governorships; Republicans, 16. Democrats re-elected Edmund S. Muskie governor of Maine Sept. 10. Earl K. Long was elected governor of Louisiana Jan. 17.

Thousands of state and local offices. A number of state constitutional amendments.

Death Takes Mrs. Allsie Caraway, Eldorado Resident

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Caraway, 62, wife of Allsie Caraway of 1121 Lincoln street in Eldorado, died at 11:30 p. m. yesterday in the Pearce hospital in Eldorado following a long illness.

Besides her husband she leaves the following children: Kenneth of Nashville, Ill., Carl of Chester, Jethro of Manteno, Rev. Edward Caraway of Lawrenceville, Allsie Caraway Jr., Eldorado, three daughters, Mrs. Pearl Bennett, Equality, Mrs. Delores Crippin, Duplo, Mrs. Mary Stelman of Chester; also one brother, William Edwards, Eldorado, 24 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The body was returned by the Martin funeral service to the residence today to lie in state. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Eldorado Church of God. Rev. V. B. Raines will officiate and burial will be in the Reed cemetery at Wasson.

7 Dead, 148 Hurt In El Crash

CHICAGO — Authorities today planned an unusual election-day inquest into an elevated train crash that claimed at least seven lives and injured about 148, a dozen critically.

"I want to discover if the el was going too fast because it was behind schedule. I also want to look into charges concerning brake failure," Coroner Walter E. McCarron said.

"I don't care if it is election day. This thing is above politics."

The crash, Chicago's worst public transportation disaster since 34 persons were killed in a street-car-gasoline truck collision six years ago, occurred at the height of Monday's evening rush hour when an eight-car city el plowed into a halted suburban express.

The impact sent the el's lead car telescoping 15 feet into the more solidly built suburban train. Rescuers—with acetylene torches, electrical saws and power winches—worked for nearly five hours to free trapped passengers.

Rocket Accidentally Fired Hits House; No One Is Injured

MT. CLEMENS, Mich. (AP)—One of four rockets accidentally fired from a Sabre jet at nearby Selfridge Air Force Base Monday tore through a house but injured no one.

The rockets, of the "Mighty Mouse" variety, were launched from the jet when three mechanics wired a camera in the ship. The heat of the blast set the plane on fire but the blaze was extinguished quickly.

One of the rockets struck the home of Herbert Glasgow, nearly two miles from the air base. Another was found on the base and the search for the two missing rockets was to be continued today.

Senate seats are completely safe, but the GOP candidates are heavily favored for six of the others. Subtracting those, the Republicans have vulnerable seats at stake in California, Colorado, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Maryland, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

In the 432 House races, the Democrats started with their usual bulge of about 100 safe seats in the South. Sixty-nine Democratic House candidates had no opposition, compared with three Republicans.

Maine elected its three House members — two Republicans and one Democrat — when it reelected Democratic Gov. Edmund S. Muskie two months ago.

Expect Soviets To Offer Arabs Military Aid

MOSCOW — More than 1,000 Russian tried to force their way into the British and French embassies here today in the second day of demonstrations against Britain, France and Israel.

The continuing demonstrations coincided with the growing belief by diplomats here the Soviet Union would offer Arab countries all out military and economic aid and permit a "substantial" number of Soviet citizens to volunteer for Middle East duty.

Syrian President Shukri Al Kuwaty conferred here last week with government officials, Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov and other top generals. Observers said military aid to Syria emerging from those talks presumably would be trans-shipped to Egypt to replace losses suffered thus far by Egypt.

The diplomats were inclined to give a literal interpretation to Premier Nikolai Bulganin's words to British Prime Minister Anthony Eden Monday night that "we are fully determined to apply force to crush the aggressors and restore peace in the East."

The Soviet was expected to supply the Arab nations with enough arms to replace those destroyed in the Anglo-French bombings of Egypt, but observers doubted Russia would go so far as to participate in direct and unilateral military action.

Stern Note by Bulganin

They believed a more likely form of Soviet involvement would be the flow of volunteers, arms, armaments and military advisers to the Arab countries.

Observers were astonished at the stern language of Bulganin's messages to Eden and French Premier Guy Mollet, unprecedented in relations between countries at peace with each other.

The Soviet premier requested Eden "to show the proper reasonableness and draw his own appropriate conclusions."

Bulganin's messages to Eden and Mollet made two points:

1. A suggestion, however hypothetical, of a possible rocket attack on England proportionately comparable to the Anglo-French attacks on Egypt. This sounded ominously like a threat.

2. Bulganin's declaration that the Soviet government is fully determined to use force, presumably within the United Nations, to crush aggressors and re-establish peace in the Middle East.

Britain and France To End Hostilities

ous consideration" to a Swiss call for a Big Four conference including Russia, he added.

This afternoon Moscow Radio broke into its broadcast with an unscheduled news bulletin. It said: "In this historically decisive hour, when the greatest values of mankind's inheritance are at stake and mankind is being pushed back into chaos and savagery, when France, Israel and the United Kingdom are carrying out a treacherous attack on Egypt and are defiantly carrying the banner of lawlessness and shame, Egypt is addressing a request for help in the form of volunteers, arms and other means to all those who through-out the world still respect human dignity and the lawfulness of international relations."

"She Needs Your Help"

"The people of Egypt are waging a struggle for their life and honor. The Egyptians are fighting not only for themselves and for their country but equally for the whole civilized world."

"As long as aggression against Egypt continues despite United Nations resolutions, Egypt will continue to fight with every determination and all her forces against the forces of evil and in the name of dignity and a worthy existence."

"She needs your help."

Russia Monday had sent messages to Britain and France warning them that she was prepared to use force to crush "aggression" in Egypt.

British Prime Minister Anthony Eden was so occupied with the crisis that he did not appear at the first session of the new Parliament after the opening speech by Queen Elizabeth. Eden, French and American officials were reported in telephone and teleprinter contact across the Atlantic.

The moves of the great powers was overshadowing even the war in Egypt.

No School Holiday On November 12

C. R. Gardner, county superintendent of schools, pointed out today that the schools of Saline county would be in attendance on Nov. 12.

The School Code does not permit public schools to observe holidays which fall on Saturdays or Sundays, Gardner stated. November 11th, which is ordinarily a legal school holiday, comes on Sunday, therefore the State Legislature which pays the local districts for days in attendance requires schools to be in session unless the holiday comes on a regular school day.

Ambassador to Philippines Dies

MANILA (AP)—Albert F. Nufer, U. S. ambassador to the Philippines, died in Manila today, the American Embassy announced.

An embassy spokesman said Nufer suffered a coronary thrombosis and died almost instantly late today at his residence on Dewey Boulevard overlooking Manila Bay.

Mrs. Nufer was in the United States at the time of his death.

Nufer came to the Philippines as ambassador earlier this year from Argentina where he served as United States Ambassador.

VFW National Chief Urges Expulsion Of Russia From UN

WATERTOWN, S. D. —The national commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has called for expulsion of Russia from the United Nations if the Kremlin refuses to withdraw its troops from Hungary.

Cooper T. Holt, Chattanooga, Tenn., made the statement here while visiting the state Monday.

"If Russia continues this merciless slaughter of the helpless people of Hungary, there should be no place for it in the family of nations," Holt said.

UN Secretary General Presents Plans for Middle East Force

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold today presented plans for a Middle East police force to occupy Egypt from the S. S. Canal to the Israeli border once peace has been restored.

Hammarskjold presented his report early today so delegates could study it and act on it at another emergency session of the General Assembly late today or tonight. The plan hinged on Anglo-French acceptance of a cease fire and Egyptian permission to station troops in Egypt.

The police force, to be made up of volunteers would exclude all of the permanent representatives of the Security Council — Britain, France, the United States, Soviet Russia and Nationalist China—because of the big stakes they have in the Middle East.

The secretary general said he already had offers from Canada, Colombia, Denmark, Norway, Pakistan and Sweden to supply troops and expected further offers. He asked that some of the forces be organized in battalion strength.

He made these suggestions:

1. It would go into action once hostilities come to a halt.

2. It would be para-military and not a force with military objectives. He indicated it would be armed but gave no details.

3. The force would have no rights other than those necessary for the execution of its facilities. It would be more than observers corps but in no way a military force temporarily controlling the territory in which it is stationed.

4. Its functions would cover an area extending roughly from the Suez Canal to the Egyptian-Israeli border.

5. It would be made up of self-contained units to avoid inefficiency caused by mixing of different nationalities.

6. Each nation would finance its own troops.

7. The assembly would decide how long the police force would remain on duty.

Preparations in Full Swing for Homecoming at Carrier Mills

Parade Will Be Held Saturday; Will Crown Queen

The fourth annual Homecoming of the Carrier Mills Community high school will be held Saturday, Nov. 10, and preparations for the gala occasion are in full swing at the present time, Principal Warren G. Jennings announced today. The opening event of Homecoming will be the Junior play, which is scheduled for 8 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 8. Friday evening, Nov. 9, the bonfire and pep rally will be held on the school athletic field at 6 o'clock, followed by the traditional snake dance winding thru the downtown area.

The Homecoming parade will begin at 2 p. m. Saturday, Nov. 10, with the Carrier Mills Fire department leading the procession and the high school band setting the pace. This year's parade is expected to be the largest parade in the history of the school and many graduating classes, business firms, and civic organizations have expressed their intentions of entering floats in it.

Parade Route

The route of march is as follows: The starting point will be the Carrier Mills grade school on Washington street with all entries turning north at the intersection of Washington and Main streets and proceeding north on Main to the intersection of Main and Parker streets; thence turning west on Parker to the intersection of Parker and Mill streets; proceeding south on Mill to the intersection of Mill and Oak streets; then proceeding east on Oak street to Main street then north on Main to the intersection of Main and Washington; all entries will then turn east on Washington and continue east until the entire parade comes to a halt along that street where pictures will be taken of the prize winners.

Saturday at 6:45 p. m., the C. M. C. H. S. Wildcats will open the 1956-57 basketball season with Vienna furnishing the opposition in the Homecoming games. The varsity game will begin at approximately 8:15 p. m. The Homecoming dance will start at 10:30 p. m. Every former student of C. M. C. H. S. is especially invited to remain for the dance and the coronation of the 1956 Homecoming Queen.

Candidates for Queen

The coronation of the E. M. C.

will take place at 11:15 p. m. in the gymnasium during the Homecoming dance. In past years most of the fans at the Homecoming game remained to witness the beautiful ceremony of the coronation and to take part in the Homecoming dance. The Homecoming court this year will consist of the Queen and her attendants. She will have a Lady in Waiting, a Maid of Honor, and a queen attendant, all of whom will be chosen from this year's Senior class.

In homerooms Oct. 23, the Senior class chose the following girls as candidates for the 1956 Homecoming Queen: Delice Blake, Mary Holmes, Jean Ritter, and Mabel Tanner. On Nov. 6, the entire student body will ballot to elect one of those four girls to be her Royal Majesty, Queen of the 1956 C. M. C. H. S. Homecoming. The other three senior positions in the court will also be determined by ballot of the entire student body. The other three class attendants completing the Queen's Court were chosen by individual classes as follows: Junior attendant — Susan Ricketts; Sophomore attendant — Joan Dunn; and Freshman attendant — Joyce Absher.

Parade Prizes

The Carrier Mills Alumni Association has announced the following prizes to be given for the outstanding entries in the parade: 1st place winner — $15; 2nd place winner — $10; 3rd place winner — $5. All parties interested in entering the parade are to contact B. J. Priest at the high school immediately.

The high school general Homecoming committee supervising all activities consists of Mrs. Mabel Porter, B. J. Priest, and Athel Tanner, with these faculty members in charge of the following activities: Parade committee — B. J. Priest, Robert Aaron; bonfire — A. L. Willis; dance committee — Athel Tanner; coronation committee — Mabel Porter; publicity — Jean Crowder, Mary Ann Richardson; gym decorations — Wayne Minton; alumni registration — June Priest; senior float — B. CHICAGO (U-P) — One year's court supervision was imposed Monday on a 17-year-old youth charged with beating a high school teacher at a football game Sept. 28. The youth is Victor Fiumetto, who was sentenced by Boy's Court Judge Alexander J. Napoli. Ray McDade, physical education instructor at Lane Tech High School, testified that Fiumetto knocked him down 14 steps and then jumped on him with both feet at the Lane Tech-Austin game. McDade said the youth became angry and violent after he requested him not to block an exit at the game.

Bull Pups Drop 33-13 Tilt to West Frankfort

The Harrisburg Bull Pups last night dropped a 33-13 decision to a good West Frankfort freshman-sophomore football team at Taylor Field.

The locals did very well from the middle of the second quarter on—but could not overcome a 19-0 deficit piled up by Frankfort in the initial period.

During the last half Harrisburg made seven points while holding Frankfort scoreless.

First quarter saw Frankfort score on a 32-yard run, a 17-yard punt return and a 14-yard run.

The lead was increased in the second quarter on a 33-yard pass play before DeWayne Martin of Harrisburg skirted his left end for a 60-yard touchdown run to give the locals six points. Frankfort scored again in the first part of the second quarter to make the count 33-6 and from there on out Harrisburg held.

The locals made their second touchdown early in the fourth quarter on a 39-yard pass play, Carl Fleming to Bob Pavelonis.

BY BILL MELTON

Bud Hamby again takes top honors in the "You Pick 'em" contest. Bud was correct in nine of his ten selections, missing only by taking West Frankfort over Harrisburg.

But in that one game he was joined by every other contestant. No one predicted the Bull Dogs to win.

Eddie Quade and Ira Stilley tied for second place, each with a 7-4 mark.

On the "game of the week" score Stilley was the closest, but he didn't see the 20-point bulge Benton had over Eldorado. Stilley predicted Benton to win 20-6. Hamby's predictor was 20-14 and Quade's 21-19.

In our list of games for this week's "You Pick 'em" we are going to cover a long week end, taking games from schedules of Friday, Saturday and Monday and also throw in a basketball game. This is the Veterans Day (formerly Armistice Day) weekend and Nov. 11 falls on Sunday, so the traditional games are being played on Nov. 9, 10 and 12.

The list of games for this week: Eldorado at Metropolis; Sparta at Chester; Zeigler at Christopher; Herrin at Marion; McLeansboro at Carmi; Du Quoin at Pinckneyville; Benton at Harrisburg; Illinois Normal at SIU; Murphysboro at Carbondale; Vienna at Carrier Mills (the game of the week, high school basketball).

All you do is look over the list of ten games, circle the name of your choice to win in each game and predict a score of the game of the week. And remember, the game of the week is a basketball game. The score will (at least should) be much larger than the football games.

Dump Tons of Sand Into Mine With 26 Entombed

SPRINGHILL, Nova Scotia (AP)—Tons of wet sand shovelled into a coal mine shaft today buried more than 20 trapped miners for whom hope was abandoned.

The sand was dumped into the shaft to block it off and prevent an explosion that would be "a mortal blow" to this town of 8,000 persons.

Harold C. M. Gordon, vice-president of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. whose subsidiary Cumberland Railway and Coal Co., No. 4 pit was blocked, ordered the mine sealed Monday after conferring with Nova Scotia mines department officials.

A spokesman said it was believed 26 men were entombed, bringing the death toll to 37 following a pithead explosion late Thursday that sent deadly gas seeping more than a mile underground and trapping 118 miners. Eighty-eight were rescued.

Baptist church, and Rev. William Burroughs of the First Presbyterian church — announced church league basketball would be sponsored again in Harrisburg by the Ministerial Association.

Plans are now being made for the leagues—there will be play in Junior and Senior age groups.

Soviet Athletes Arrive for Olympic Games

MELBOURNE (AP)—Russian athletes, pleased that their arrival in Melbourne produced no political demonstrations, today planned to get in their first workouts on Australian soil for the forthcoming Olympics.

The first contingent of Russia's bulky team arrived by plane Monday from Rangoon and settled down in the Olympic village with other athletes from Italy, Romania, Korea and The Netherlands.

When the Russians made their Olympic debut at Helsinki, Finland, four years ago, they camped in a separate village eight miles from the other competitors. But this time they agreed to mix with all other nations in the main village.

The Soviet team is expected to be the largest of the 1956 games. Sixty-three members were on the first flight to Melbourne and they will be joined Wednesday by another large contingent when the Russian merchant ship Gruzia docks here.

Forty-nine members of the Korean team also arrived Monday. The combined East-West Germany teams are due today, along with segments of the Japanese, Italian and Lebanese squads. The vanguard of the United States team is expected Thursday.

Soil Bank Payments Counted as Net Earnings by Social Security

Payments of two types to farmers under the "soil bank" crop reduction plans are counted as net earnings in computing earnings for social security insurance benefit payments, and payments of a third type may be counted under certain conditions, according to E. Bishop Hill, district manager of the Social Security Administration in Harrisburg, who said many inquiries had been received on this subject.

The soil bank payments to be counted as net earnings by self-employed farm operators are those made under the "acreage reserve" program and the annual payments for land placed in the "conservation reserve," Mr. Hill said. "These payments replace income which the farmer reasonably could have expected if his land had been kept in normal crop uses."

A third type of soil bank payment is the conservation reserve reimbursement payment. These are payments made by the Federal Government to pay part of the cost of carrying out the conservation practices and making improvements on the conservation reserve. They are included in figuring the farmer's net earnings only if the expenditures are deductible as business expenses for income tax profits.

A landlord who owns a farm and participates materially in the production or management of production of farm commodities gets social security credit for his share of the soil bank payments just as the farm operator does, Mr. Hill pointed out. For a farm owner who receives rental income but who takes no part in the actual operation of the farm, neither the soil bank payments nor the other rental income counts toward social security benefits.

Farmers who draw soil bank payments are subject to self-employment (social security) taxes as on other net earnings, and these earnings count toward social security retirement, disability, and survivors insurance benefits. "A large number of elderly farmers are retiring each month under the old-age and survivors insurance program provided by the Social Security Act," Mr. Hill pointed out, "and the amount of the monthly payment is based on the farmer's average monthly earnings."

Day of the Outlaw

By Lee Wells

Copyright 1955, by Lee Wells. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Dan Murdock, foreman of the Star ranch, and his boss, Rancher Blaise Starrett, did not know when they rode into Bitter, Wyo., ahead of a thaw, that a group of outlaws who had robbed a bank were headed in the same direction.

III

Starrett was not in the store when Dan returned nor did Vic Franzin know where he had gone. Dan felt certain he was at the Wyoming Bar across the street and he knew that Hal Crane and his riders were also there.

He doubted if Starrett would start anything now, particularly with the odds against him. Starrett never jumped blind. Dan took a handful of crackers from a barrel, bought some cheese from Bob Frazin. He poured a mug of coffee from the pot on the stove and sat down to a make-shift lunch.

Ernie counted bolts of cloth behind the drygoods counter. Dan had heard that years ago Ernie had been quite different. Some said she had lost a love, and it was never quite clear whether the man had died or had simply dropped out of her life. Since then she had been courted by a few bold enough to face the challenge of her frozen beauty, but none had lasted long.

He arose impatiently and Ernie looked curiously at him, no warmth in the deep brown eyes, one dark brow arched in an unspoken question.

"Not much weight to an ordinary puncher, is there?" Dan asked impulsively. She showed surprise, then shrugged. "Depends on who . . . and how you mean it, Dan."

"Take it any way, I guess." Her shoulders stiffened and he could sense the hardening of her reserve. "I'm particular anyhow, Dan, and no part of the question. Ask someone else."

Dan smiled and walked to the door, buttoning his coat. Ernie studied his broad back, her eyes enigmatic. Dan paused out on the porch. The snow looked even more watery and the chinook wind seemed stronger. Give it 12 more hours and the valley would be a lake and the land would have no bottom.

He considered going to the lumberyard. Not that he could tell Paula his problem, for he had not even hinted yet that he considered marrying her. True, he saw her every time he came to town and he had a hunch that she knew he was close to serious about her.

He saw Starrett come out of the Wyoming Bar and Dan stood poised, expecting Blaise to come across the street toward him. But Starrett angled away to the lumber yard. Dan descended the steps, still watching, and he saw Starrett enter the office.

Dan halted, feeling a surge of anger and disappointment. He could not talk to Paula with Starrett in the office. He stood a moment and then, with an impatient turn, slogged across the street to the Wyoming Bar. He saw Phil Preston leave the lumberyard, cross the street. Phil saw Dan and hurried up.

"Early thaw, I reckon. Going to be in town the night?" Dan shrugged, his irritation still spurting him. "I guess so. Depends on Blaise."

"Good." Phil looked back at his office. "Why don't you come to the house for supper? I get lonely some for man talk of an evening."

Dan was pleased but a glance at the blank windows of the office dispelled it. His lips pursed. "Sure I'd be welcome?" Phil laughed and replaced his hat. "I'd bet on it. The minute I tell Paula, she'll want to cook something special. You'll come?"

Dan smiled, relieved. "I'll be there." "Six then," Phil nodded. He walked on. Dan remained, still smiling. He looked at the lumber office again but could see nothing through the windows. How could you draw a man's pay, take his orders, be loyal and still be his rival for the prettiest girl in the Territory?

He stepped up on the porch of the Wyoming Bar, glanced again across the street, sighed, and pushed open the door. The bar extended along the back wall, the mahogany dully reflecting the light from windows covered by a checkered oil paper. The brass rail was bright in spots, dull green in others. Sawdust covered the floor. Round tables were spaced about the rest of the room, their tops covered in a green cloth, empty and strangely forlorn.

Two men stood in almost the exact center of the bar, their backs to Dan, but there was something familiar in the set of their shoulders. Tommy Rikes polished a glass behind the bar and he looked up as Dan entered.

"Well, Murdock! What brings you to town?" "Blaise, mostly," Dan answered. He saw Ava Rikes at a table in the corner, touched his hat and nodded pleasantly. Her red lips broke in a smile. Then she returned to her solitary game.

The men at the bar did not turn but their shoulders stiffened as Dan approached. Dan glanced in the mirror and recognized two of Hal Crane's riders, Lewis and Claggett. They were nondescript men with thin faces and level, questioning eyes. Dan ordered, then turned to the men.

"Howdy," he said gravely. "Snow bad up your way?"

"Not too bad," Lewis said distantly and the tension eased. Claggett craned beyond Lewis to catch Dan's attention.

"Melting now," he said to show that he, too, would meet Dan's courtesy.
